

SPLASH FOR HIRE

Savannah marketing and advertising guru Peter Roberts is sharing his expertise with brides by means of his new made-to-order stationery business, Custom Impress. Committed to accommodating a range of budgets and styles, this one-man creative force has already won a design award. His sole purpose? For your invite to stay on the fridge long after your happy guests return home.

www.customimpress.com

Prime Mr. and Mrs.

Savannah brides, you're in good company. As this issue of Savannah Weddings goes to press, the prime minister of the Central American nation of Belize is about to marry at the Episcopal Church of St. Paul the Apostle on February 7. Prime Minister Dean Barrow, his longtime love, Kim Simplis, and their daughter, Salima, are leaving the sugary sands and azure seas of Belize behind in favor of a relatively intimate reception at the Marshall House on Broughton Street. Local planner Sebrell Smith and photographer Allison Reisz, both featured in this issue, are among the celebrated couple's chosen wedding professionals.

We look forward to delivering all the divine details on this swank celebration in our Fall issue.